

Enduro

Posted by Big Dog - 16 Nov 2008 08:06

There was discussion about being able to use two different cars for the enduro by using a portable transponder and switching it at the pit stop, at least for the 944 group.

Is that going to be permitted?

Do any of you guys have 5 lb extinguishers for the pit stalls. I don't have one.

What other equipment will we need (I haven't read the rules yet:unsure:)? Will we need absorbent and water in the pit? That was required in Sonoma.

Getting excited.

Big Dog

Re:Enduro

Posted by joepaluch - 17 Nov 2008 01:43

The swapping of cars when away with change to 3hr race length. That was only an option for 4 hrs.

I am sure each fueler will need a large FE in the pits. I have one that I keep in my truck for that. We might be able to share that between cars, but there is a chance that if both come in at the same time you will be short.

As it comes to water and absorbent I would guess that a few guys could share those.

Club racing az website has all the enduro sups...
