

I wanna be Jeff Gordon!

Posted by rd7839 - 11 Feb 2014 14:49

Hey guys, anyone interested in doing the NASCAR configuration at Sonoma? It would be something different, and looks like it might be fun.

We would have to see if the PRC guys are interested or run with another group. Or maybe one day with one group with the NASCAR setup and one day with the traditional configuration.

I didn't know Sears Point had an oval!

I knew you were a little fancy but Jeff Gordon?

I'm open to running some other configurations. Why not break up the usual. Good luck convincing PRC though.

And it actually does have a real oval out behind T7 - just not the road course.

I'm open to running different versions of the road courses (not interested in Ovals). Running NASCAr t4 would be interesting as would running the INDY T9

Hey, I have Jeff Gordon's windshield on my car so I should be able to drive like him(the windshield really did come from his car from a race in Texas, complete with the tear offs!)!

If everyone is game, lets get the ball rolling and talk to Masuo in march. If they aren't in we will run with the spec e30's when they do that configuration.
