1987 Porsche 944S2 with 415hp LS2 racing engine built by Turn-key Engines, giving it roughly 3 times the original power with same weight. Car is fully built track car with heavy roll cage, dual Sparco racing seats, 5-point seat belts, quick detach Momo steering wheel, coil over adjustable suspension all around, camber plates, 2 sets of wheels and tires (Pilot Super Sports for street/wet, Hoosier R7 slicks for track/dry), 6-piston "Big Red" brakes from 911 turbo, 5-speed 944 turbo transmission, and much more.

Are you interested in trading for a 944spec, it just won a regional championship!

Are LS2's de-tunable enough to run in ST3 with 2,600 pounds, would need it to be about 260hp? It's a 10 to 1 power to weight class.

Thanks,

Norm

The car looks awesome. Would be nice to have a car that with simple adjusting can be raced in multiple classes.

Thank you!

Did this car ever sell?

Is the cage legal for full racing in NASA?

Still have heater core and full street accesories or lightly stripped?

Thanks,

Charlie
