

Bushings

Posted by 944sracer - 02 Aug 2009 10:33

Ok so I have decided to take on the task of replacing my bushings with , per the rules, either welts or Delrins. My question is which seem to work the best? Also any experiences people may have had and tips they would like to pass on. I read the threads about the rear bushings being troublesome but there seems to be no definite conclusion as to the best bushing. Can someone help me on this and add their thoughts?

TIA, oh and I have a 87 with Konis

=====

Re:Bushings

Posted by SvoChuck - 02 Aug 2009 13:42

I have done numerous installs with the welts . they seem to be trouble free and work GREAT.

I have done one install of the delrin. They must be custom fitted to your car. It took about 3 extra hours to install them . if i ever have to do delrin agian it would only take one and a half extra. I have not driven the car with the delrin bushings in it so no comment as to feel.

=====

Re:Bushings

Posted by 944sracer - 05 Aug 2009 07:51

So I guess a follow-up question would be:

Are the Delrins worth the extra install time? Or do the Welts do just as good a job?

Though You have not driven a car with them perhaps you have heard from others? Or others might care to comment?

=====